Prayer For Vocations

Heavenly Father, bless Your Church with an abundance of holy and zealous priests, deacons, brothers and sisters. Give those You have called to the married state and those You have chosen to live as single persons in the world the special graces that their lives require. Form us all in the likeness of Your Son so that in Him, with Him and through Him we may love You more deeply and serve You more faithfully, always and everywhere. With Mary we ask this through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Saint Therese of Lisieux's
Prayer for Priests

O Jesus, eternal Priest, keep your priests within the shelter of Your Sacred Heart, where none may touch them. Keep unstained their anointed hands, which daily touch Your Sacred Body. Keep unsullied their lips, daily purpled with your Precious Blood. Keep pure and unearthly their hearts, sealed with the sublime mark of the priesthood. Let Your holy love surround them and shield them from the world's contagion. Bless their labors with abundant fruit and may the souls to whom they minister be their joy and consolation here and in heaven their beautiful and everlasting crown.

Immaculate Heart of Mary by Rev. Peter M.J. Stravinskias

A few weeks ago the Church celebrated the Solemnity of the Sacred Heart of Jesus and on the day after, the Immaculate Heart of Mary. The two feasts are not situated alongside one another by coincidence, but by the careful plan of the Church. The Heart of Jesus began beating beneath the Heart of His Blessed Mother; Her Heart, in turn, took form from the creative Word and Power of the Heart of God. Two hearts beating as one.

The heart is a symbol with a rich biblical lineage. In Hebrew, both the heart and the bowels represent the very depths of a person — where the cognitive and the affective meet in unity and harmony. Hence, we find passages in the Bible which speak thus: “My heart is overwhelmed, my pity is stirred.” (Hosea 11:8) Far more than an organ of the body, then, the heart suggests the source of compassion, tenderness, kindness — in short, what we call “mercy.”

An interesting piece of Biblical trivia: A quick survey of a Biblical concordance reveals that the word “mercy” is used more than 200 times in the Sacred Scriptures, while the word “heart” appears over 600 times. No surprise, then, that Saint Augustine, playing with the origins of the Latin word for mercy (miser cordia), tells us that God’s grace moves us “a miseria ad misericordiam” (“from misery to mercy”). “Miser cordia,” you see, comes from two words which combine to mean “having a heart for the miserable.”

It’s worth noting, however, that the Bible — unlike many today, even in the Church — can speak frequently and passionately about the “heart” and the virtue of “mercy” without being in the least bit soft or unclear on what constitutes truth and justice. Indeed, as we know only too well, contemporary talk about “mercy” (when it even arises) seems to consider truth and justice as somehow obstacles to mercy. That’s simply false and a substitution of feeling for reality.

Shakespeare rhapsodized on the beauty and glory of mercy, precisely because of the truth that we are all sinners and therefore need mercy to temper strict justice, when he had Portia exclaim:

*The quality of mercy is not strain’d,
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath:
It is twice bless’d;
It blesseth him that gives and him that takes:
’Tis mightiest in the mightiest;
It becomes the throned monarch
better than his crown;
His sceptre shows the force of temporal power,
The attribute to awe and majesty,
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings;
But mercy is above this sceptred sway,
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute to God Himself,
And earthly power doth then show likest God’s
When mercy seasons justice. Therefore, Jew,
Though justice be thy plea, consider this,
That in the course of justice none of us
Should see salvation: We do pray for mercy,
And that same prayer
doth teach us all to render
The deeds of mercy.*

As beautiful as that soliloquy is, as one commentator has observed, “before Shakespeare wrote it, God was it!”

Indeed, God became Mercy Incarnate within the spotless Womb of the Virgin Mary. And She understood it all so well that She broke forth into her canticle of praise, the Magnificat: “And His mercy is from age to age on those who fear Him.” Our Lady was not teaching theology from a textbook but from Her own experience of life. God had touched Her so profoundly by His mercy that She became what the Church’s lovely night prayer to Her rightly calls Her — “Mother of Mercy.”

God the Father sought the young Maiden’s cooperation with His eternal plan of mercy; God the Holy Spirit overshadowed Her with His merciful wings; She became the very seat of Mercy, the Mother of the One Who is “rich in mercy,” as the title of Pope Saint John Paul II’s encyclical reminds us.

Our world needs to hear the message of mercy perhaps as no other age before. A culture of violence, death, destruction and despair can be healed only by mercy. You and I, like Saint Faustina before us, must count ourselves among the apostles of mercy. But first we must be convinced that mercy has been granted us; otherwise, our words will ring hollow.

The result of knowing mercy (which comes from the very core or Heart of the Being of God) means being grabbed at the very core or heart of our own being — and that gives birth to the emotion (both divine and human) of joy. Of course, that also presupposes that we believe that we need mercy! Our Lady leads the way as She sings out: “My spirit has rejoiced in God My Savior.” Where mercy gives birth to joy, melancholy, fear and death are definitively banished.

May the Mother of Mercy show us the blessed Fruit of Her Womb, Who is none other than the compassionate face of God, Mercy-in-the-Flesh.

Collegiality and Eucharistic Integrity

by George Weigel

The concept of the “collegiality” of bishops has been sharply contested since the Second Vatican Council debated it in 1962, 1963, and 1964. That discussion was sufficiently contentious that a personal intervention from Pope Paul VI was required to incorporate the concept of episcopal collegiality within the Dogmatic Constitution on the Church in such a way that the pope’s primacy and universal jurisdiction were safeguarded. The debate about collegiality has continued ever since. Now, however, it’s focused more on what kind of collegiality exists within national conferences of bishops. Is it an “affective collegiality” of mutual support and encouragement? Or is episcopal collegiality within bishops’ conferences “effective,” such that a conference has real teaching and legislative authority?

Whether collegiality is “affective,” “effective,” or some combination of the two, it ought to be clear what truly “collegial” behavior isn’t.

It isn’t individual bishops attempting end-runs around their national conference, appealing for Roman interventions that would forestall debates that their brother bishops wish to engage. It isn’t bishops trying to browbeat the conference chairman into changing an agenda to suit the tastes of a distinct minority — and misleading their brother bishops as to what they’re about when soliciting support for such a gambit. And it isn’t trying to filibuster a conference meeting so that no action is possible on an agenda item that the great majority of bishops wish to consider and act upon.

If any of those three maneuvers qualifies as collegial, then “collegiality” has no more meaning than the claim that my poor Baltimore Orioles have a great starting rotation.

For years now — and by “years,” I mean long before the idea of a “President Biden” entered the stream of national consciousness — the bishops of the United States have been concerned that ours is becoming less of a Eucharistic Church than Vatican II called us to be when it taught that the Eucharist is the “source and summit” of the Church’s life. Pope Saint John Paul II reaffirmed that conciliar summons when, in his final encyclical, he taught that “the Church draws Her Life from the Eucharist,” which “recapitulates the Heart and Mystery of the Church.” Yet all around us we see declining Sunday Mass attendance: a sadness that preceded the pandemic but has been further exacerbated by it. Moreover, surveys suggest that too many Catholics think of Sunday Mass as essentially a social occasion, rather than an encounter with the living God in which Christ is offered to the Father and is given back to his people in Holy Communion — a Communion in and through the Body and Blood, Soul and Divinity of Christ, received under the forms of bread and wine.

If the Church lives from the Eucharist and yet the people of the Church don’t participate in the Eucharist as often as they should, or don’t understand what they’re celebrating and receiving when they do, then the Church suffers from a serious Eucharistic deficit. Those ordained to leadership in the Church are obliged to do something about that.

That is why the U.S. bishops have been determined for some time to undertake a comprehensive program of Eucharistic education throughout the Church. For the great majority of bishops, that determination has been intensified by the fact that our Eucharistic deficit is being compounded by the Eucharistic incoherence of public officials who, rejecting authoritative Catholic teaching based on both revelation and reason, nonetheless present themselves for Holy Communion as if they were in full communion with the Church. The longstanding episcopal failure to address this incoherence exacerbates the Eucharistic deficit in American Catholicism by implying that the Church really doesn’t mean what it teaches about the sacred nature of the Eucharist.

Those suggesting that this is all about “politics” are either ill-informed or deliberately misleading the Church and the gullible parts of the media. Concern for the Eucharistic integrity of the Church includes, but goes much deeper than, concerns about the Eucharistic incoherence of Catholic public officials who act as if the Church’s settled convictions on the life issues and on worthiness to receive Holy Communion don’t exist. That is why the U.S. bishops are forging ahead with developing a teaching document that will clarify for the whole Church why we are a Eucharistic community, what the Eucharist truly is, what reception of the Eucharist means, and why everyone in the Church should examine conscience before receiving Christ in the Sacrament.

The wheels of collegiality may grind slowly. In this case, however, they are grinding truly, and for the sake of the Gospel.
