Church Regulations For Fasting and Abstinence During Lent

Everyone 14 years of age or older is bound to abstain from meat on Ash Wednesday, and on all the Fridays of Lent plus Good Friday. Everyone 18 or older, and under 59 years of age, is bound to fast on Ash Wednesday and Good Friday.

On Ash Wednesday and Good Friday, only one full meatless meal is allowed. Two other meatless meals, sufficient to maintain strength, may be taken according to each one's needs, but together they should not equal another full meal. Eating between meals is not permitted. When health or ability to work would be seriously affected, the law does not oblige.

Catholics should not lightly excuse themselves from these prescribed minimal penitential practices.

To the Heavenly Helpers

Our family is deeply grateful for your kindness and generosity during this difficult time. The meals you provided for Agnes Louviere's funeral were a true blessing, offering comfort and support when we needed it most. Your thoughtfulness and compassion mean so much to us, and we sincerely appreciate all that you have done.

With heartfelt thanks,
The Louviere Family

Divine Mercy Novena

Catholic Daughters of the Americas Our Lady of Good Counsel # 1401 invites you to join us in praying the Divine Mercy Novena. We will begin Day 1 on Good Friday, April 18, 2025, immediately following the 3:00 p.m. Commemoration of the Lord's Passion at Saint Joseph Church. We will gather on the left front side of the church. Brochures will be available in the vestibule with prayers and intentions outlined for the Nine Day Novena which concludes on Divine Mercy Sunday, April 27, 2025, with a Holy Hour of Mercy at 3:00 p.m. at Saint Joseph Church. In addition to the intentions contained in the novena we will pray for our personal intentions, and for peace and unity in our country and in the world.

True 'Enlightenment' by Rev. Peter M.J. Stravinskaskas

The original purpose of Lent was to provide proximate preparation of candidates for Holy Baptism. With the passage of time, its purpose expanded to provide all the members of the Church the opportunity to return to Baptismal innocence. So, the Sacred Liturgy begins a serious turn toward reflection on the meaning and effects of Baptism in the days ahead. Interestingly, in the early Church, the Sacrament of Baptism was often referred to as either Illumination or Enlightenment.

Which makes it worthwhile asking: "Have you ever lost your sight — even temporarily? Have you ever been plunged into darkness unexpectedly?" It's a frightening, fearsome thing. Darkness/light, night/day, and blindness/sight are themes frequently repeated in Saint John's Gospel in order to teach some important truths about Jesus and the nature of Christianity. It's no accident that we'll shortly be hearing almost exclusively readings from John for the rest of this holy season.

Two passages are examples of what I mean. In John 3, we eavesdrop on the dialogue between Our Lord and Nicodemus, a leading Pharisee who — at the same time — is a disciple of Jesus, but one who approaches Him only under the cover of darkness. Christ reminds Nicodemus that there's an intimate connection between walking in darkness and doing evil deeds — and between walking in the light and performing righteous deeds.

Six chapters later, this theological lesson is dramatized for us in the cure of the man born blind through no fault of his own; he is eager to see, both spiritually and physically — he's open to the workings of God. Then we encounter the Pharisees, who have physical sight, but they have become spiritually blind because they have lost the proper perspective; instead of rejoicing at the healing of the blind man, they react to the fact that Christ has healed on the Sabbath. They're proof of the adage, "There are none so blind as those who will not see." John presents us with two types of people we always have with us: Those willing and those unwilling to accept Jesus as the Light of the World.

I recently watched a video of Francis Poulenc's opera Dialogues of the Carmelites. It lacks the excitement or lyricism of Puccini, but contains a powerful message. The action occurs in France during the French Revolution and zeroes in on one Carmelite convent, which becomes a symbol or microcosm for other religious houses at that time. That period was also known as the Enlightenment, which prided itself on replacing the God of Revelation with the "goddess of reason," blasphemously and sacrilegiously enthroned in 1793 in Notre Dame Cathedral. That "cult of reason" was, of course, characterized by hostility toward Christianity.

As the plot unfolds, revolutionary forces offer the Carmelites a choice: Give up your convents and habits, or give up your heads. As a result, thousands of clergy and Religious were martyred — the first fruits of "enlightenment."

When man exceeds his bounds; when he's blind to his human limitations; when he tries to be God; the enlightenment that follows is, in reality, darkness. The Enlightenment continues to have a pernicious influence on our culture, encouraging every kind of disaster from abortion-on-demand, to family breakdown, to sexual promiscuity, to materialism, to teenage suicide. Man has attempted enlightenment without Christ, with the result that the darkness has never been deeper, the blindness more devastating.

Returning to our opera, as the guillotine hits each nun's neck, the blindness of their persecutors in their hatred for Christ's truth becomes eminently clear. Then true enlightenment dawns on the crowd, which gradually stops barbaric cheering at the violence and is brought to see the witness of these rather unexceptional but holy women — bearers of light in one of history's darkest hours.

They succeeded in bringing people from blindness, to sight, to genuine insight. (An interesting historical note: So impressive were the courage and fidelity of those nuns and so negative the reaction of the people to their deaths that they were the last victims of a public execution for the remainder of the French Revolution.) Like Jesus, their witness to truth and love brought peace and reconciliation. Although the Sisters were beatified in 1906, it was not until this past December that those indomitable Martyrs of Compiègne were canonized.

As Christians, we claim to be the followers of Jesus Christ, the Light of the World. Saint Paul repeatedly admonished his people to walk honorably as in the daylight. But how do you know if you are doing so? Let me offer a brief examination of conscience, which can serve as an acid test for your own blindness or insight.

- When the media attack Christian values, what is your reaction?
- When the polls inform us that x percent of Catholics approve of practices contrary to the Catholic Faith, what is your conclusion?
- When the Church, which offers the light of Christ to the world, challenges your own personal behavior with the unfailing standard of the Gospel, what is your response?
- When political messiahs present you with an attractive social or economic package but likewise peddle immorality, do you vote for God or Mammon?
- When the pseudo-intellectuals in our midst today, who have been blinded by their own enlightenment, serve up their pontifications, do you heed them?

If you do not choose Christ and His Church, you are blinder than the Pharisees or the French anti-clericals ever were! Choosing the light means both thinking the right thoughts and performing the right actions.

Pope Saint John Paul II set the tone for his 1980 pastoral visit to France by asking the grossly inconvenient and embarrassing question, "France, eldest daughter of the Church, what have you done with your Baptism?" In this Lent of 2025, we should hear an echo of that query directed to each of us personally. Has our Baptism been a true illumination or enlightenment? Under the power of Divine Grace, we can experience a true return to baptismal innocence, becoming once more "children of the Light."

Father Peter Stravinskaskas holds doctorates in school administration and theology. He is the founding editor of The Catholic Response and publisher of Newman House Press. Most recently, he launched a graduate program in Catholic school administration through Pontifex University.
